

Welcome to the CCR March 2023 Newsletter

Our shortest month still afforded us eight great presentations. Our membership continues to grow, with our attendance nearing the capacity of our meeting room. We are considering alternatives, but we are very happy with where we are, and ECPI University is very happy to keep us as their guests.

* * * * *

CCR's Charleston Academy for Lifelong Learning (CALL) began on February 14 with more classes and more students than ever before. It's not too early to consider becoming a facilitator for a class in the Fall. For more information check the CALL Winter 2023 Catalog or CALL's Facebook page.

* * * * *

The Trips & Tours committee's tour of Nucor Steel on February 24 was a great success. Watching, hearing and feeling the roar of steel being melted, poured and rolled was awesome. CCR's next trip will be to the play God of Carnage performed by the Footlight players at the Queen Street Playhouse on Sunday, March 26 at 3:00 p.m. Our last trip of the semester will be to see a Riverdogs game at The Joe on April 25 at 7:05 PM. Check the Trips & Tours CCR website tab for more details and the CCR Facebook page for pictures from previous tours and more.

* * * * *

Our Social committee continues to prepare refreshments for us each week between presentations. They appreciate all of the wonderful goodies that you have brought in to share with other members. A special thank you to Sylvia Gamboa for providing a King Cake in celebration of Mardi Gras.

* * * * *

Art Klein has begun organizing a monthly CCR Acoustic Music activity. If you wish to suggest an activity for other members, please provide me with a short description and contact information.

* * * * *

CCR Facebook Page Check CCR's Facebook page for the latest goings on.

CCR Website Please explore the CCR website for updates about all CCR activities.

Fred Rosenberg, President
Center for Creative Retirement
fredondi@gmail.com

